

NLB Online Repository of Artistic Works (NORA)

CONJUNCTION (VERSION 10)
Edwin Thumboo

For permission to print, download, produce or otherwise use this work, click here:
cfahead@nus.edu.sg

Note: Content layout and formatting are as received from author.

Edwin Thumboo. All rights reserved.

This copy is for online viewing only on the NLB Online Repository of Artistics Works and may not be printed, downloaded or reproduced in any form without prior permission from the copyright holder.

Conjunction

Sometimes, when the sun is twice itself
With light that quietly breaches certainty,
You feel the distaff side grow warm and glow.
Pores of colour erupt: something is to happen,
Unalerted, free of context, beyond intimation.
Perhaps a visit that starts a high-road journey.

Not into the desert, but that familiar thing: a sudden
Squall within, though now its eye moves hidden.
Perhaps inspecting secrecies, a preached word,
Somewhat unreleased, unleavened, leaving language
Lame all these years, with neither fret nor fever.
Perhaps now a downward curve whose end will rise,
 May take us up.

Words begin to feel a somehow finger touch their Shoulders. Then congenial down the spine, stopping
At conjunctions; laying energy behind eye and ear; then
The tongue's tip tasting darkness. Then a burst of light:
Grandpa's final face, as he lay wrapped in love, reveals.
This time it is memory finds the door and turns the key.

 At another,
Surely that eternal Thought which made the universe,
Takes you into a world of dew, or a shooting star's
Brief statement; or the moon gathering golden evenings
Before rising. For some, a grammar of words meditating
Steady upon us, makes the leap, unlocking as she goes,
Disclosing small infinities. One who knew meaning
In light and darkness, and the shades between, said
 Words alone are certain good...
 The wandering earth herself may be
 Only a sudden flaming word....

 So, at times
The uncertainty principle settles clear and certain –
Stabilised into moments just long enough to do its work.
Thereafter, we return to what we know, the ordinary;
Breathe familiar fantasies. For the day has no alarms;
All is usual. Once more the world has four safe corners;
Day its middle hours; night its usual count of owls....
At least till when the sun descends in double-self.

Edwin Thumboo. All rights reserved.

This copy is for online viewing only on the NLB Online Repository of Artistical Works and may not be printed, downloaded or reproduced in any form without prior permission from the copyright holder.

Edwin Thumboo

Edwin Thumboo. All rights reserved.

This copy is for online viewing only on the NLB Online Repository of Artistics Works and may not be printed, downloaded or reproduced in any form without prior permission from the copyright holder.